Jerry's a kid at heart

By Joan Crosby

Jerry Lewis is the only kid on the block who knows exactly what he will be doing from now until March 21, 1969.

Wherever Jerry goes, a black notebook goes. It contains a schedule so complete that Jerry can look at it, check his new film, "Hook, Line and Sinker," and say, "We'll be dubbing it in September and shipping it to distributors on October 24."

Each week, more days are added to Jerry's schedule, just so you don't think his world ends next March.

The book doesn't bind the NBC-TV star, back for his second season with The Jerry Lewis Show. It simply soothes his often nervous nerves.

Lewis

HE WAS in an office at NBC decorated with a sign. It read "Jewish Power."

"Anything to make it feel homey," Jerry laughed, then flipped his looseleaf. "The only time you find static around me is when there is an open area in the book. I'm not happy when I'm idle. I took my wife on a vacation to Honolulu and I trembled for five days from the quietness.

"Sure, every eighth day I go through a thing where I think I want to give it all up, but any human who has a compulsive drive like I do enjoys it. The only thing that throws me is dealing with people who are dull or have nothing to contribute. I can talk for five hours with someone who is interesting and never even know I sat down."

WHEN HE discusses children (and Jerry considers himself one of them), this complex man best reveals himself. "Children," he said, "that's what it's all about. We have a new segment on the show this year called Tell It Like It Is. I sit and talk to 15 kids, and the cameras grind 30 minutes and we pull out seven or eight minutes. I write the 'menu,' what we talk about, and they provide the answers. When I'm writing for the screen, I like to have kids around."

Jerry has six of his own, all sons. He has a granddaughter, Sara Jane, nine months old.

"I'll never forget that day when the doctor came out and said I had a granddaughter. It was like one of those cartoons where you see someone turn to granite and then crack. I felt just like that.

"You know, I'm never going to reach the age of 68. I'm 42 now, but I'm really only 9. So the ratio will never catch up to 68."

At that rate, provided he doesn't permanently turn to granite some day, Jerry will be cracking people up for a long time to come. (NEA) listing. (1967). Until 9:30 p.m.

Dr. Strangelove 8:00 pm, 7
"Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb"
is the funny but equally grim motion picture directed by Stanley Kubrick.
The doomsday picture, offering all sorts of wry comments on our society, concerns the chaos triggered by a crazed Air Force general who dispatches bombers to attack Russia
because he suspects them of tampering with America's water supply. Peter Sellers (in three roles), George C. Scott, Sterling Hayden, Slim Pickens, Keenan Wynn and Peter Bull.

a naive son of a millionaire who boards an ocean liner for New York
and is prey for husband-hunting females. Henry Fonda, Barbara Stanwyck, Charles Coburn. (1961). Until 5:30 p.m.

C: The Glass Bottom Boat 8:00 pm, 2
Doris Day again, still America's girl-next-door, but this time involved with secret agents and spies. Her father (Arthur Godfrey) runs a sightseeing
glass-bottom boat and she entertains
the tourists by swimming around garbed as a mermaid. She becomes involved with Rod Taylor, a scientist concerned with security and her banana cream cake. A Chicago TV premiere. Transparent comedy sinks.
(1966). Until 10 p.m.

C: The Magnificent Seven 10:30 pm, 9
