Girl+Horse=TV Success

Receipe for a successful television show:

Take one dark haired, blue eyed little girl who loves animals, add a magnificent thor-
bred stallion, mix well into a sensitive plot involving the girl, the horse, her family and their problems.

The happy result is National Velvet, a genuine "horse opera" seen Mondays on NBC-TV [channel 5] at 7 p. m.

The girl is pretty Lori Martin, the horse is King, the family's name is Brown. And their problems? Well, the problems any farm family might have. Provided, of course, that the family has a daughter named Velvet and a horse named King.

Lori Martin

Diminutive Lori, who celebrates her 15th birthday Thursday, was cast in the role of Velvet after an intensive talent search. Nearly 1,000 girls were interviewed, 70 were auditioned, and six were screen tested before she was given the role of the child who loved a horse "too wild to break."

Acting is not new to Lori.
She began play-acting as a child. At seven, she did her first professional work—a commercial—and then, after studying drama seriously, won roles in Alfred Hitchcock Presents and Wagon Train.

Last summer she co-starred as the daughter of the character portrayed by Gregory Peck in the film, "Cape Fear."

Born April 18, 1947, the daughter of Russell and Dora Mae Menzor, Lori has a fraternal twin sister, Doree. She also has a sister, Jean, 17 and a brother Stephen, 12.
